Bangladesh Introduces New Banknotes Without Mujibur Rahman's Portrait

Top 10 Current Affairs Questions of Today - June 7, 2025

Bangladesh's interim government, led by Muhammad Yunus, introduced new banknotes without Sheikh Mujibur Rahman's portrait, replacing it with natural landscapes, archaeological sites, and religious landmarks to promote a neutral, inclusive national identity. The redesigned Taka notes in denominations of 1000, 50, and 20 highlight the country's cultural heritage amid political unrest following former PM Sheikh Hasina's 2024 ouster and ongoing legal proceedings. Existing currency with Mujibur Rahman's image will continue circulating during this phased transition.
