Government Discontinues Gold Monetisation Scheme

The Indian government has discontinued the Gold Monetisation Scheme (GMS), except for short-term bank deposits, citing evolving market conditions. Launched in 2015, GMS aimed to mobilize idle gold and reduce imports. It had three deposit categories: short-term (1-3 years), medium-term (5-7 years), and long-term (12-15 years). The RBI clarified that existing deposits will remain valid until maturity. The decision follows the earlier discontinuation of sovereign gold bonds, aligning with rising gold prices and a shift in government strategy.
