After a brief hiatus of two months since the last Vande Bharat train was flagged off in July 2023, this grand event marks a significant stride in India's pursuit of modernizing its railway infrastructure. These semi-high-speed trains have captured the nation's attention, not only for their speed but also for the saffron-coloured makeover they will receive, a symbol of their 'Tricolour' inspiration. This blog explores the significance of this development, the new routes, and the transformation of the Vande Bharat Express.

The Long-Awaited Expansion: Expanding the Vande Bharat Network

With this launch, the Vande Bharat Express network will expand significantly, adding nine new routes to its existing portfolio of 25 routes. This brings the total number of routes served by Vande Bharat Express to an impressive 34. The fact that every one of these trains is being inaugurated by Prime Minister Narendra Modi underscores their strategic importance in the current political landscape.

As of now, these semi-high-speed marvels operate on 25 routes across the country. However, with the upcoming inauguration, the Vande Bharat Express network will expand to an impressive 34 routes. This expansion is a testament to the government's commitment to enhancing connectivity and promoting faster and more efficient rail travel.

Regional Focus: Where Will the Trains (Vande Bharat Express) Run?

The distribution of these nine new trains reflects a strategic approach to connect various parts of the country. Poll-bound states like Rajasthan and Madhya Pradesh are set to receive the maximum number of these trains, promising improved connectivity and faster travel options for the residents.

In South India, two Vande Bharat Express trains are expected to be introduced, including the much-anticipated orange-grey Vande Bharat Express. This move is likely to bring a new level of convenience and efficiency to rail travel in the southern part of the country.

The Routes Unveiled

The nine new routes set to be inaugurated after the dry spell of two months include:

A Look Back at Vande Bharat Express

The journey of Vande Bharat Express is nothing short of remarkable. The project to manufacture indigenous semi-high-speed train sets commenced in mid-2017, and within 18 months, the Integral Coach Factory (ICF) Chennai completed Train-18. This marked the birth of India's first semi-high-speed train, which was later rebranded as Vande Bharat Express in January 2019, emphasizing its 'Made in India' identity.

A Splash of Saffron: The New Look

One of the most noticeable changes in the upcoming Vande Bharat Express trains is their new Orange-Dark Grey paint scheme. This bold choice of colours, particularly the saffron shade, is inspired by the 'Tricolour' and adds a patriotic touch to these high-speed trains. The colour scheme is not just a cosmetic change; it extends across the train, giving it a more prominent and distinctive appearance compared to the current generation of Vande Bharat Express trains, which feature a blue strip running along the sides. Among the nine new trains being launched, a noteworthy addition is the first-ever saffron-coloured Vande Bharat Express. This distinctive colour scheme holds significance as it is inspired by the Indian tricolour, symbolizing the spirit of national pride and unity.

A Giant Leap for Indian Railways

As Prime Minister Narendra Modi prepares to launch these nine Vande Bharat Express trains, India's railway network is poised for a significant transformation. The expansion of this semi-high-speed service, coupled with the new paint scheme, reflects India's commitment to modernizing its railways and enhancing connectivity between different regions of the country.

These trains not only represent a technological advancement but also symbolize India's progress and ambition in the field of transportation. As the Vande Bharat Express network continues to grow, it promises to revolutionize rail travel, making it faster, more comfortable, and more accessible for all. In a move aimed at improving regional connectivity, the launch of these nine trains will particularly benefit the poll-bound states of Rajasthan and Madhya Pradesh. Additionally, South India is expected to receive two Vande Bharat Express trains, including the eye-catching orange-grey variant.

In the coming days, passengers and rail enthusiasts alike will eagerly await the inauguration of these nine new trains, which will undoubtedly play a vital role in shaping the future of India's rail transport system.
