Analytical Reasoning Questions Solution

The correct answer is Option 4 i.e. Price options of bikes are getting wider as many of the urban upper class are taking up cycling

Statement: Once considered a poor man's ride Bicycles now cost lakhs, though the highest-priced bikes at stores are not in the most selling price category the amount signifies that the customers are willing to shell out that much for a bicycle.

Let's check all the options for the most appropriate assumption implicit in this statement:

Option 1: The announcement of a new source of cleaner energy in research has forced bike producers to diversify their prices. this assumption is not implicit (The assumption about the announcement of a new source of cleaner energy driving the diversification of prices is not implicit in the statement.)

Option 2: Those who are poor have access to a cheaper mode of transportation. this assumption is not implicit (Information about access to a mode of transportation by any class is not implicit in the statement.)

Option 3: Bikes distributed for free by various governments are being resold and that is driving the bike prices. this assumption is not implicit (Assumption about reselling of bikes and its effect on bike prices is not implicit in the statement.)

Option 4: Price options of bikes are getting wider as many of the urban upper class are taking up cycling. this assumption is implicit (As the statement mentions that bikes now cost lakhs and the highest priced bikes are available in the store and bought implies that the upper urban class who can afford such bikes with ease are taking up cycling.)

Option 5: The lowest priced model is in the most selling price category. this assumption is not implicit (The statement only mentions that the highest-priced bikes at stores are not in the most selling price category but this does not imply that the lowest priced model is in the most selling price category.)

Hence the correct answer is Price options of bikes are getting wider as many of the urban upper class are taking up cycling.
