Question On Analytical Reasoning

Statement: Farmers in a particular region are experiencing a prolonged drought. Assumptions: I. Crop yields will likely be lower than usual due to the lack of water, leading to potential financial hardships for farmers. II. All farmers in the region will have access to advanced irrigation technology to mitigate the impact of the drought.

Difficulty : Moderate

Average Time : 41 Seconds

Analytical Reasoning Questions Options

1. Both assumptions I and II follow
2. Only II follows
3. Only I follows
4. Neither I nor II follows

Analytical Reasoning Questions Solution

The correct answer is Option 3 i.e. Only I follows

I. Assumption I (Follows) is a reasonable expectation, as a drought typically leads to water scarcity, which can result in lower crop yields and financial challenges for farmers in the affected area.

II. Assumption II (Does Not Follow) assumes that all farmers in the region have access to advanced irrigation technology, which is unrealistic. Access to advanced technology can vary widely among farmers, and many may not have the means to employ such technology, especially during challenging periods like droughts.

Hence, the correct answer is Only I follows.
