A grammatically correct and contextually meaningful statement has been given in the following question. Five similar sentences have been placed next to each statement, one of which is contextually similar in meaning to the one given in the question. Choose the most appropriate sentence that conveys the same meaning as the given statement. A) The new policy aims to increase access to affordable housing for low-income families. B) However, some critics argue that it may have unintended consequences, such as driving up housing prices.

Difficulty : Moderate

Average Time : 49 Seconds

Sentence Connectors Questions Options

1. Although the new policy aims to increase access to affordable housing for low-income families, some critics argue that it may have unintended consequences, such as driving up housing prices.
2. The new policy aims to increase access to affordable housing for low-income families, but some critics argue that it may have unintended consequences, such as driving up housing prices.
3. Despite the new policy aiming to increase access to affordable housing for low-income families, some critics argue that it may have unintended consequences
4. Both 1 and 3
5. None of the above

Sentence Connectors Questions Solution

The correct answer is Option 2 i.e. The new policy aims to increase access to affordable housing for low-income families, but some critics argue that it may have unintended consequences, such as driving up housing prices.

"But" is the correct connector here because it introduces a contrast between two opposing ideas. The first sentence establishes that the new policy aims to increase access to affordable housing for low-income families, while the second sentence presents an opposing viewpoint that the policy may have unintended consequences, such as driving up housing prices. By using "but," the connector effectively links these two opposing ideas, resulting in a sentence that means "The new policy aims to increase access to affordable housing, but some critics argue that it may have unintended consequences."
